

ILIPPA (Madhuca longifolia)

REVATHI

It is one of the most important of Indian forest trees on account of its fleshy edible flowers.

During the season, gathering of the edible Mahua flowers is an important routine for the tribal folk.

The dried flowers are pressed and eaten as such like figs. They are also fermented and distilled into strong spirituous liquor which is relished by the tribes.

PLANT YOUR STAR TREE